PUZZLE OF THE WEEK

★ WOW WORK! ★

The snail and the cheetah

In the desert lived a snail and a cheetah. One day they decided to have a race. The cheetah kept teasing the snail telling him he was so slow and he would lose the race. That made the snail feel sad. On the day of the race the cheetah was jumping around saying "snail your so slow I am going to win."

The race started the cheetah ran off and he was very fast. The snail was very slow and the cheetah was running so far ahead. The cheetah found a palm tree so he then went to the palm trees and he thought to himself "that palm tree has a lot of shade maybe I should have a nap as I'm so far in front, the snail is so slow he won't have a chance to catch up" He then lied down and fell asleep.

A few hours went by and the cheetah woke up to a lot of cheering, he saw that the snail had gone past him and was about to win. The cheetah ran as fast as he could go to catch up, he ran through the line and celebrated like he had won.

As he was going so fast he didn't see the snail had already won.

After the race the cheetah went home still thinking he had won, suddenly he heard a party coming from the snail's house next door. He wondered what was going on, so he went to the house wondering "what is that sound?" He used his tail to knock on the door. The snail opened the door and the cheetah found out he had lost, the snail saw he was sad from losing the race so he invited him in to join the party. The cheetah apologised to the snail for being so mean so the snail said "thank you cheetah for apologising to me" and they partied all night.

The moral of the story is don't be big headed and be kind to others.

TIP THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

at first, you have a big emotional reaction

then you learn to stop, pause and breathe

from there, you can choose a different response and with time, that becomes your new instinct
