Black History Month – October 2026

October is Black History Month in the UK. It is a time to celebrate the achievements, history, culture and contributions of Black people in Britain and around the world.

Black History Month is important because it helps us learn about people and events that may not always be included in our everyday history lessons. It gives us the opportunity to recognise the achievements of Black scientists, artists, athletes, writers, activists and many others who have helped shape our world.

There are lots of ways we can celebrate Black History Month at Park School. We can read books by Black authors, learn about inspiring Black figures, listen to music, explore different cultures, watch documentaries and take part in classroom activities and discussions.

Most importantly, Black History Month encourages us to learn, celebrate, respect and understand. It is a chance for everyone to discover new stories, appreciate different experiences and celebrate the diversity of our school and wider community.
